

Public Consultation Process

As part of the Feasibility Study for the Archimedia Project, young people worked with Quattro Designs on a Public Consultation evening. Local people, local organisations and passers-by were invited into the Media Centre to find out about what we do, but also to ask them what they think of our plans to redevelop the site. The Core Group filled out a questionnaire that covered noise, access, design, car parking and security. This public consultation formed a significant part of the Feasibility that was published in September 2004.

